

Rules of the Road

36 mini-dialogues to practice have to, allowed to, should, supposed to

The card says...

Drive without a license
Park on the pavement
Put petrol in a diesel car
Stop at red lights

You ask...

You're not allowed to drive without a license. It's forbidden.
You're not supposed to park on the pavement, but people do it sometimes.
You really shouldn't put petrol in a diesel car. It's a terrible idea!
You have to stop at red lights. It's required.

check your tyres before you go on a long journey leave your documents in the car overnight
drive without a license stop at zebra crossings when someone's waiting to cross park on the pavement
indicate before changing lanes

1 © English Should Be Fun .com drive for 16 hours without a break get angry with other drivers use hands-free to talk on your mobile when driving use winter tyres in summer pick up hitch-hikers call the police after an accident

2 © English Should Be Fun .com

stop for a rest every two hours overtake when there's a solid white line on the road eat while driving drive when you are 17 years old go faster than 80 kph in the city go faster than 110 kph on the motorway

3 © English Should Be Fun .com

wear a seatbelt when driving throw cigarettes out of the window wear a seatbelt in the back of the car send messages when driving put petrol in a diesel car
stop at red lights

4 © English Should Be Fun .com

check your mirrors before changing lanes have your lights on when driving in the daytime keep a pair of sunglasses in the car use a mobile phone at a petrol station carry a spare tyre park at a bus stop

5 © English Should Be Fun .com

clean your car regularly drive without insurance let four people sit in the back of your car use winter tyres in winter wear a helmet when riding a bicycle keep your number-plate clean

6 © English Should Be Fun .com

